technical support

As we last year presented live studio broadcasts by means of streaming, we will again this year use this platform. As was the case last year, the SALLR team has secured an extremely competent crew, with vast technical experience, to provide the required technical support before and during the broadcast. Professional lighting, the utilisation of quality microphones and state-of-the-art video equipment will ensure an enhanced experience during the live broadcast.

free live broadcast trial run

This platform is something totally different from the webinars that most of you are used to. The best way to describe it is that it is just like watching television – last year’s delegates can vouch for that. You will be provided with an opportunity to sample, for free, the SALLR live broadcasting option to make sure that you are impressed with our product, technical support and ease of user requirements – the trial run is currently scheduled for October.
